CHAMPION, (Alberta) THURSDAY Jan. 3, 1935

NUMBER 37

Attend Special Review of New Ford V-8 Cars

Mr. L. Granlin, local Ford dealer, and J. Kalpus, of the sales and service staff of the dealership, returned here on Dec. 29th from Calgary, where they attended the special review of the new Ford V-8 cars for 1935, held for Ford dealers and their associates in the Alberta territory, on December 27th.

I. Granlin and J. Kalpus attended the confidential preview of the new Ford V-8 cars for 1935, held for dealers and their associates, held in the Ford Motor Company of Canada Limited branch building in Calgary.

During the meeting they heard H. E. Ford, Elmer Fordin, Mr. Wallace R. Campbell of the Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited, and others of the Ford Motor Company address the entire Ford organization in Canada and the United States. Many interesting developments were brought up which extended from New York to San Francisco and from Minneapolis to Houston in the United States, and from Vancouver to Saint John in Canada. They also witnessed moving pictures of the new Ford cars, and discussed the Ford sales campaign for 1935.

The meeting was in advance of the first public showing of the new Ford V-8 cars, set for Saturday, Dec. 29th.

Hospital Opens

Passed Into History

A hospital, under the management of Miss Victoria E. Ray and Miss Rosalie Boisjoli, has been opened in the Savoy Hotel building. The hospital, when completed will have ten bed capacity and is fully equipped to handle any type of case.

The nurses in charge are both widely experienced. Miss Ray being a graduate of the General Protestant Hospital of Ottawa and Miss Boisjoli a graduate of the General Hospital of Edmonton.

Miss Ray has taken a post-graduate course at the University of Alberta and recently completed an electrical course in New York city. Miss Ray is well known in this district having nursed here in several instances.

The hospital is now in operation and the rates are $3 per day.

Champion Bridge Club consisting of Lachlan, Depue, Head, McIntyre, Patterson, Comolini, Clever and Watts were guests of the Barons Club on Friday evening. They defeated their opponents by 3000 points. The Barons club consisted of Mr. Carroll, Robertson, Wallace, Roberts, Smith, Bancroft, Berger and Nowlin.

The old year has passed into history and we hope our adion not only to 1934 but we hope to the period of depression. 1935 has every promise of being a year of improved conditions. People are losing the feeling of fear and dread which characterized their actions when the depression was at the deepest point. Money is circulating more rapidly and merchandise is changing hands more freely. It is the opinion of the editor that the worst is over and happier days are on the horizon.

The New Ford V-8 for 1935 is the biggest and roomiest Ford car ever built. It is a strikingly handsome car, with modern lines and new, luxurious appointments.

But most important of all it is especially designed to give you smooth, easy riding over all kinds of roads—a front-seat ride for back-seat riders."

This ease of riding is achieved by the use of three basic principles never before combined in a low-priced car:

1. Correct distribution of car weight by moving engine and body forward eight inches.

2. New location of seats by which the rear seat is moved forward, toward the centre of the car, from the rear axle and away from the bumpers.

3. New spring suspension which permits the use of longer, more flexible springs and increases the springbase to 123 inches.

BE SURE TO SEE THE NEW FORD V-8 1½-TON AND 2-TON HEAVY-DUTY TRUCKS . . . AND THE NEW COMMERCIAL CAR

GRANLIN MOTORS, Champion Alberta

The result is Centre Poise—which not only gives you a new riding comfort but adds to the stability of the car and its ease of handling. You can take curves from seven to eight miles faster with perfect safety.

There are many new features in the Ford V-8 for 1935 which make the car still easier to drive. New brakes give more power for stopping quickly with far less foot pressure on the pedal. A new type of easy-pressure clutch employs centrifugal force to increase efficiency at higher speeds. New steering mechanism makes the car still easier to handle.

The New Ford V-8 for 1935 retains the V-8 engine which has demonstrated its dependability and economy in the service of over a million owners. There are refinements but no change in basic design. You buy premium performance when you buy this Ford V-8—full 50 horsepower and 85 miles an hour.

We invite you to see this New Ford V-8 at the showrooms of Ford dealers. You will want to ride in it—to drive it yourself. You will find it a new experience in motoring.

AT 62—IN BED WITH RHEUMATISM

At 65—Working Again

Why worry about rheumatism? This old fellow had it almost as bad as it could be. But he just found right remedies and now he's working again—at 65 years of age.

Let him tell you all about it—"For two years and a half," he writes, "I have been free from rheumatism. For eighteen months I could not run over in bed, but he just found right remedies and now he's working again—at 65 years of age."

Let him tell you all about it—"For my legs were so weak I could not stand up or get any rest until

I started taking Krueger Salts.

After taking one tablet a day for two weeks I kept on taking them and found the pains were leaving me.

I have six tablets a day now, have started working again, and everybody that knows me says I am now, after what I was."

Do you realize what causes rheumatism? It's the same thing—uric acid crystals which form as the result of sluggish eliminating organs. Krueger Salts always be counted upon to clear these painful crystals from the system.

"You said not a word about it," said Crewe surprisedly.

"I had a reason. I believe a good one. You see, I had heard what told what I had; would have come of it. I tell you, you've got to have the evidence printed out and bound in cal-skin to land that man Dustin where he belongs. I'm slowly gettin' that evidence. I hope, let me alone."

"You workin' for the Carttlemen's Association?" demanded Crewe.

"Nope. I'm like that fightin' man the Sir Walter Scott wrote a book about—Henry of the Wynd. I'm fightin' for my own hand. Let me alone a bit, Crewe, and I'll come clean."

Crewe eyed him keenly.

"I'll do just that," he said. "You were right. I'll get you two of Dustin's men up Red Water, way, way to meet me what you saw . . ."

Stone told him all length and, when he told how he made Gray and Corse cut that mite-gnawed ranch and fog each other, and Crewe, who had some sense of humor, roared with laughter till he was helpless. Suddenly he stopped laughing, wiped his eyes and sat up.

"Get the horses," said Carr shortly.

"Crewe'll ride with you."

At the office Hoskins, the operator, grimly feebly as Stone wrote his name over again, added to the counter.

That message simply said:

"Come at once. Your services are needed at once."

"How long till you can report service on that when he asked."

"The place is at that address," said Hoskins.

"Good. I'll be at the Silver Dollar saloon. I'll be sober, too."

Stone grimly took up his change and left. Crewe, with a smile, had a good sense of humor, roared with laughter till he was helpless. Suddenly he stopped laughing, wiped his eyes and sat up.

"You had to have saved time an' trouble."

"I'd just do that," he said.

"You were right. I'll get you two of Dustin's men up Red Water, way, way to meet me what you saw . . ."

Stone told him all length and, when he told how he made Gray and Corse cut that mite-gnawed ranch and fog each other, and Crewe, who had some sense of humor, roared with laughter till he was helpless. Suddenly he stopped laughing, wiped his eyes and sat up.

"I didn't think of it," said Stone frankly.

"I was so damn eager to see Dustin's men punish each other that I didn't think of it. Think we better tell Mr. Keene?"

"No," said Crewe shooing his head.

"We're in a bad enough mess as it stands. I'm manager. I'll handle it. Carr would only go on the pro. He'd shoot Stone and whoever shoots Stone it must be him. We've got to think it out."

He strode into the house, and Stone went off to the bunk-house where he was greeted with a shower of hot words. Lee, who had been sent to straighten up the stables, came back incensed.

"Your damned saddle was all over the place, Duro," he said. "I shifted it to another peg." He whispered something to Baines that made him look askance at Stone and presently a roar from the ranch-house brought him to the door. It was Crewe shouting for him.

"You, Stone," he shouted. "Mr. Carr wants to see you right away."

Stone stepped up the steps, Crewe met him with a grave face and motioned to a chair while Mr. Carr entered from across the door.

"Sit down, Stone," said Carr eying him balefully for a moment. Then: "I took you on my pay roll on trust," he said. "I didn't know a damn thing about it. I didn't ask for references. Look at me. I didn't know a damn thing about it."

He hung on the little red metacock that Stone had picked up after Corse and Gray had their set-to. Stone took it and examined it carefully. He knew it had been in his saddle-bags too long. It ought to be there now. But what did this coll mean about a notebook that didn't even belong to him? Carr went on and talked himself into wrath as men do.

"I've packed your saddle-bags to-night and the book fell out," he said. "Where's you get it?"

"It belongs to old man Kane . . . " began Stone.

"I know that. I know, too, that Kane is here, married by the name of the Broken Spur. You can't carry water on both shoulders, Stone. If you run with Kane, you can't trail with us. What have you got to do with Dusty of the Broken Spur? Has he lied to me?"

"Wait a minute. I'll show you just how much I am mixed up with Kane and Dustin." Stone thrust a hand into his pocket, pulled out an envelope and flung it before Carr. The old ranch-hand unbuttoned his coat-pocket and slouched forward to the bar, where Stone lounged across the edge.

Duro cast one glance at Stone and tilted the wheel back to the bar. In that mirror he saw Dusty, the broken-spurred old man, sit up and something to Carr. Stone slipped a full hand into his coat-pocket and slouched forward to the bar, where Stone lounged across the edge.

Carr leant over him. "What have you got to do with Dusty of the Broken Spur?" he asked.

"Wait a minute. I'll show you just how much I am mixed up with Kane and Dustin." Stone thrust a hand into his pocket, pulled out an envelope and flung it before Carr. The old ranch-hand unbuttoned his coat-pocket and slouched forward to the bar, where Stone lounged across the edge.

"By God," he said sharply. "This letter is to me from my partner, Gerald Keene . . . Where's you get it?"

"It's a letter recommending me for a job," said Stone coolly. "I got the job. You need the letter. But Stone refused you the job. I'd have given you the letter."

"We've been tryin' for a long time to find young Keene," said Carr. "We've got to make a rabbit spit in a bulldog's face." He was a plain case of self-defense. But Stone had no great idea of what he could do for him.

"You can tell me where you're from. I'll send him a wire that'll bring him in. In fact . . ."

Stone stopped short of disclosin'.

Stone never got up the nerve that made him disclose his secret. Better wait till the very last. It could always be done. He felt, too, that Edith might feel that he was a spy in their camp. He turned to her. "I'd like it untroubl'd," he said.

"I've talked more to you than I have to Mr. Carr or even to Miss Edith. I found that notebook up in Red Water canyon. I never laid eyes on it before. I don't know what it is about. It's a hell of a place to be in."

"Edith, I'm like that fightin' man the Sir Walter Scott wrote a book about—Henry of the Wynd. I'm fightin' for my own hand. Let me alone a bit, Crewe, and I'll come clean."

Crewe eyed him keenly.
